RAAF Base Support BBQ

On Sunday 4th February the RSAR Association was tasked to provide a BBQ lunch for the Battalion who were conducting a Force Preservation Exercise at RAAF Base Edinburgh.

Our small group of helpers performed their duties with vigour (in the heat) and had the 200 soldiers all fed and full by 1300 hrs. Our thanks go to Chief Caterer Col Abel who once again provided and prepared all the food, and ably assisted in cooking the BBQ. Helping out were:

Col Abel
Rodney Beames
June & David Laing
Julie & Graham Elliott
Howard Parslow
Lyndon Gaborit
Max Hill

Secretary David Laing set up a Merchandise Table and provided items for purchase throughout the day, including the new RSAR vinyl stickers and the new 2 Bottle Wine Cooler Bags.

Thanks to RSM WO1 Scott Hannan for facilitating the security passes and getting us access to the base.

At the end of the exercise CO LTCOL Aaron Jackson presented each Association member with a special CO's Support Medallion, and these were very well received by the members.

All the pics are on Page 7 & 8, and further pics are on our RSAR Association Facebook page

After a long time with my current email address I am changing to a new service provider. As of 23rd March 2024 please address all emails to the Secretary at the new address of davidlaing49@outlook.com

The 2nd and final part of our special on one of only 3 men to have won the Victoria Cross twice, Charles Upham VC & Bar is on Page 3, 4 & 5. An extraordinary story of an extraordinary man, I'm sure you'll agree!

On Sunday 4th February the Association carried out its first Catering Support Exercise for the year at the Force Preservation Training Exercise at RAAF Base Edinburgh. We cooked a BBQ lunch for about 150 soldiers and all the pics are on Page 7 & 8. The Association members who helped out were presented with CO's Support Medallions by CO LTCOL Aaron Jackson. More pics on our Facebook page.

A number of Association Application Forms were handed out at the RAAF Base Edinburgh exercise, and 3 were returned, completed straight away. We expect more to be returned in the next few days, and we welcome all new serving members to the RSAR Association. We do it for you.

At the same exercise a soldier handed RSAR Association member Lyndon Gaborit $10, supposedly for his Annual Fees. Lyndon didn't record the soldier's name, so if you're reading this, and that soldier was you, please contact the secretary to have your name ticked off the list.

As an ex-service association we provide our members with an insurance policy that covers them for accident or injury whilst they are attending Association events. Because of the recent floods and extreme weather events throughout Australia over the past 12 months, all insurance policies have now had a vast increase in their costs. This includes our policy, even though we've never made a claim! To cover the nearly $1,000 annual costs of this we sell our merchandise to interested persons, just like you! Come on. Please buy something!

You have one last chance to reserve your seats for the Mid Year Luncheon at the Avoca Hotel on Sunday 24th March. To this date we have had very few bookings, and if they don't increase we'll have no choice but to cancel. (A MAJORITY vote at the last AGM asked for this mid-year lunch) The details are once again on Page 15, so please make this a successful turn-out and contact the Secretary ASAP. C U there!

CHARLES UPHAM VC & BAR continued from last month.

Bar to VC

Upham was evacuated to Egypt, now promoted to captain. He received a Bar to his VC for his actions in July 1942, before and during the First Battle of El Alamein.

Citation

War Office, 26th September, 1945.

The KING has been graciously pleased to approve the award of a Bar to the VICTORIA CROSS to: —

Captain Charles Hazlitt UPHAM, V.C. (8077), New Zealand Military Forces.

Captain C. H. Upham, V.C., was commanding a Company of New Zealand troops in the Western Desert during the operations which culminated in the attack on El Ruweisat Ridge on the night of 14th–15th July, 1942.

In spite of being twice wounded, once when crossing open ground swept by enemy fire to inspect his forward sections guarding our mine-fields and again when he completely destroyed an entire truck load of German soldiers with hand grenades, Captain Upham insisted on remaining with his men to take part in the final assault.

During the opening stages of the attack on the ridge Captain Upham's Company formed part of the reserve battalion, but, when communications with the forward troops broke down and he was instructed to send up an officer to report on the progress of the attack, he went out himself armed with a Spandau gun and, after several sharp encounters with enemy machine gun posts, succeeded in bringing back the required information.

Just before dawn the reserve battalion was ordered forward, but, when it had almost reached its objective, very heavy fire was encountered from a strongly defended enemy locality, consisting of four machine gun posts and a number of tanks.

Captain Upham, without hesitation, at once led his Company in a determined attack on the two nearest strongpoints on the left flank of the sector. His voice could be heard above the din of battle cheering on his men and, in spite of the fierce resistance of the enemy and the heavy casualties on both sides, the objective was captured.

Captain Upham, during the engagement, himself destroyed a German tank and several guns and vehicles with grenades and although he was shot through the elbow by a machine gun bullet and had his arm broken, he went on again to a forward position and brought back some of his men who had become isolated. He continued to dominate the situation until his men had beaten off a violent enemy counter-attack and consolidated the vital position which they had won under his inspiring leadership.

Exhausted by pain from his wound and weak from loss of blood Captain Upham was then removed to the Regimental Aid Post but immediately his wound had been dressed he returned to his men, remaining with them all day long under heavy enemy artillery and mortar fire, until he was again severely wounded and being now unable to move fell into the hands of the enemy when, his gallant Company having been reduced to only six survivors, his position was finally overrun by superior enemy forces, in spite of the outstanding gallantry and magnificent leadership shown by Captain Upham.

The Victoria Cross was conferred on Captain Upham for conspicuous bravery during the operations in Crete in May, 1941, and the award was announced in the London Gazette dated 14th October, 1941.

—London Gazette, 26 September 1945

King George VI had invested Upham with his first Victoria Cross at Buckingham Palace on 11 May 1945. When the recommendation was made for a second VC, the King remarked to Major-General Howard Kippenberger that a bar to the cross would be "very unusual indeed" and enquired firmly, "Does he deserve it?" Kippenberger replied, "In my respectful opinion, sir, Upham won the VC several times over."

CHARLES UPHAM VC & BAR

Colonel Burrows approached Kippenberger after the Minqar Qaim action and was already mooted the nomination for a second VC even before the battle at Ruweisat Ridge and Upham's capture. General Inglis received citations for both Minqar Qaim and Ruweisat that each individually suggested Upham merited the VC for either occasion independently, but because of the excessive rarity of multiple VC awards opted to combine the citations into the single one forwarded to the King.

With this award, Upham became the third man to be awarded a Bar to the VC. The previous recipients were Lieutenant Colonel Arthur Martin-Leake and Captain Noel Godfrey Chavasse, both doctors serving in the Royal Army Medical Corps. Martin-Leake received his VC for rescuing wounded under fire in the Second Boer War, and the Bar for similar actions in the First World War. Chavasse was similarly decorated for two such actions in the First World War, subsequently dying of wounds received during his second action. Neither of these men were combatants, so Upham remains the only fighting soldier to have been decorated with the VC and Bar.

Prisoner of war

After being taken prisoner of war (POW), he was sent to an Italian hospital where an Italian doctor recommended his wounded arm be amputated in view of their extremely scarce supplies and inability to prevent or treat gangrene. Upham refused. He knew that the operation would have to be carried out without anaesthetic and he had seen other patients dying in agony under surgery. He later had the wound dressed by an Allied POW doctor.

Upham refused on principle to escape from the hospital, but was branded "dangerous" after several later escape attempts.

One attempt occurred when POWs were being transported in open trucks through Italy. Upham jumped from the truck at a bend and managed to get 400 yards (370 m) away before being recaptured. He had broken an ankle in jumping from the moving truck.

By the summer of 1943 Upham was a POW at Campo PG47, near Modena, in the River Po Valley.

On another occasion, he tried to escape a camp by climbing its fences in broad daylight. He became entangled in barbed wire when he fell down between the two fences. When a guard pointed a pistol at his head and threatened to shoot, Upham calmly ignored him and lit a cigarette. This scene was photographed by the Germans as "evidence" and later reprinted in a biography, Kenneth Sandford's Mark of the Lion.

After this incident, Upham was considered dangerous and was placed in solitary confinement. He was only allowed to exercise alone, while accompanied by two armed guards and while covered by a machine gun in a tower. Despite these precautions, Upham bolted from his little courtyard, straight through the German barracks and out through the front gate of the camp. The guard in the machine-gun tower later told other prisoners that he refrained from shooting Upham out of respect, and as he could see German soldiers coming up the road whom he expected to capture Upham. Upham was soon recaptured and sent to the infamous Oflag IV-C (Colditz) on 14 October 1944.

During his transfer on a civilian train while guarded by two Germans, Upham made his final escape attempt. Upham was only allowed to visit the toilet when the train was travelling at high speed to prevent him from jumping through a window. Nevertheless, Upham prised open the toilet window and jumped onto the tracks, knocking himself unconscious. After awakening, he escaped into a nearby orchard, but the even rows of trees and lack of undergrowth provided poor cover and he was recaptured after 12 hours.

At Colditz, there were few opportunities to escape. Upham and most of his fellow prisoners waited until Colditz was captured by Allied forces.

Aftermath

When Colditz Castle was captured by American forces, most of the inmates made their own way home immediately. Upham joined an American unit, was armed and equipped, and wanted to fight the Germans.

Upham was keen to see action again, but was instead sent to Britain where he was reunited with Molly McTamney, who was then serving as a nurse. They were married at New Milton, Hampshire, on 20 June 1945. He returned to New Zealand in early September, and she followed him in December.

Upham was also mentioned in despatches on 14 November 1946.

POST WAR

Charles Upham's gravestone

After the war, Upham returned to New Zealand, and the community raised £10,000 to buy him a farm. However, he declined and the money went into the C. H. Upham Scholarship for children of ex-servicemen to study at Lincoln University or Canterbury College.

He obtained a war rehabilitation loan and bought a farm on Conway Flat, Hundalee, North Canterbury. It is said that for the remainder of his life, Upham would allow no German manufactured machinery or car onto his property.

Although somewhat hampered by his injuries, he became a successful farmer and served on the board of governors of Christ's College for nearly 20 years. He and Molly had three daughters, and lived on their farm until January 1994, when Upham's poor health forced them to retire to Christchurch.

Upham was surprised with an appearance on This Is Your Life in 1985.

He died in Canterbury on 22 November 1994, surrounded by his wife and daughters. His funeral in the Christchurch Cathedral was conducted with full military honours. The streets of Christchurch were lined by over 5,000 people. Upham is buried in the graveyard of St Paul's Church Papanui. His death was also marked by a memorial service on 5 May 1995 in London's St Martin-in-the-Fields Church, attended by representatives for the Royal Family; senior New Zealand government and political figures; senior members of the British and New Zealand armed forces; Valerian Freyberg, 3rd Baron Freyberg, grandson of VC holder Lord Freyberg, the commander of Allied forces in Crete and 7th Governor-General of New Zealand; representatives of veterans' organisations; and other VC and George Cross holders.

VICTORIA CROSS & BAR

In November 2006, Upham's VC and Bar were purchased from his daughters by the Imperial War Museum for an undisclosed sum. However, as New Zealand legislation prohibits the export of such historic items, the Imperial War Museum agreed to a permanent loan of the medals to the National Army Museum at Waiouru. On 2 December 2007, Upham's VC was among nine stolen from locked, reinforced glass cabinets at the museum. On 16 February 2008, the New Zealand Police announced all the medals had been recovered as a result of a NZ$300,000 reward offered by Michael Ashcroft and Tom Sturgess.

Letters to the Editor

David,

Your article on Charles Upham VC & BAR reminded me of a holiday twenty plus years ago.

Arrived in Christchurch and that night stayed in a Motel in the suburbs, prior to picking up our hire motorhome, across the road was a Sub Branch of the NZ RSA (Their equivalent of our RSL).

I went across for a drink and while there I was interested to see on the wall A4 photos of all the NZ VC winners. One of their Members came up to me for a chat and I told him I had just finished the book on Charlie Upham VC & Bar. He replied "Oh Charlie is out the back, come, I will introduce you!"

I thought that was a bit rough having a VC & Bar winner working in the kitchen!

He took me through the kitchen and out the back door into a small Church Cemetery and there was the grave of Charles Upham VC & Bar!

Regards and keep up the good work.

Wayne Burns

Good afternoon,

From the CO and I thank you again for your support at the RAAF Edinburgh exercise.

The weather would not have helped, but you all showed the heart and professionalism that exemplifies what the association is.

You catered perfectly for the day. The soldiers all had ample food, and as you are all aware that is the reason the Officers and Senior NCO's go through last.

The CO and I look forward to working closely with you all again throughout the year.

Cheers,

Scott Hannan

HOW YOU CAN HELP THE BATTALION

Our Association is made up from former serving and current serving members of the Royal South Australia Regiment, with the "Old & Bold" forming the Executive Committee, plus 7 Serving Battalion Members making up the rest of the committee.

The President, Vice President and Secretary are all in their mid 70's and looking for someone to fill their boots as they reach the end of their Use-By-Dates. The RSAR Association of tomorrow will be made up predominantly of Serving Battalion Members, and it is now that we ask you to stand up and take over more responsibilities from those who have already done the hard yards.

If you can spare an hour every 3 months to attend a committee meeting at Battalion HQ, and a few extra hours on your computer planning, recording and maintaining records, then YOU are the people we need.

If you are interested, please let a Committee Member or the Secretary know, and we'll arrange a meeting.

It's not really hard, and it's definitely not rocket science, plus the end result is very gratifying when you see the results of your work being appreciated.

All inquiries should be directed to the Secretary on the numbers provided on the Editorial page.

Padres' Ponderings

From Padre Stephen Albrecht - Chaplain 10/27 Battalion RSAR

Change is an inevitable force that weaves its way into our lives, often catching us off guard. Like the ubiquitous corner stores of old, change seems omnipresent, refusing to relent in its frequency it appears. In my recent experiences, I've encountered a whirlwind of changes within a short space of time.

Two new jobs, relocation, accommodation search, and administrative hurdles. For change is everywhere, an inescapable reality.

Yet, amidst this seeming chaos, I've come to a profound realization: when things hit the fan, it's time for S.H.I.T. Yes, you read that right. As S.H.I.T. stands for "Shared Help Initiates Teamwork." Before you raise an eyebrow or question the appropriateness of the term, let me explain. It's an acronym that summarizes the essence of collaboration and mutual support, concepts I've leaned on heavily in recent weeks.

Abraham Maslow once said, "In any given moment, we have two options: to step forward into growth, or to step back into safety." This sentiment resonates deeply in times of change. For individuals are driven by various motivations, but one universal truth remains: we thrive when we lean on each other.

Research highlights the importance of teamwork in fostering a positive work culture and nurturing personal development. Collaboration not only fuels innovation and achieving our goals, but it also enhances job satisfaction. It's through collective effort we can navigate challenges, hone our skills, and find creative solutions.

As the Chief of Army aptly stated, "Shared values, attitudes, and beliefs empower Army's people and ensure they can form teams whenever, wherever, and with whomever is needed to succeed." This ethos extends beyond our military context, as it's a guiding principle for anyone facing upheaval and uncertainty which is a product of change.

So, the next time change knocks at your door and chaos ensues, remember the power of S.H.I.T. Shared Help Initiates Teamwork is more than just a catchy phrase; it's a reminder of our collective strength and resilience in the face of adversity.

Padre Albrecht
